The National Council on Administrative Fellowships (NCAF) is a consortium of fellowship sites and graduate health management programs that work together to continuously improve early-career development opportunities for our next-generation healthcare leaders. NCAF creates an industry-standard in the recruitment of administrative fellows.

The National Council on Administrative Fellowships began on October 1, 2014. As of January 2022, NCAF is made up of 122 member organizations including both fellowship sites and graduate health management programs. These organizations work collaboratively to continuously improve early-career development opportunities for our next-generation healthcare leaders.

NCAF Fellowship Directory
The NCAF Fellowship Directory is an inclusive listing of all NCAF-member fellowship sites. Students and fellows will find this information helpful when exploring options for administrative fellowship opportunities.

Collaboration & Education
NCAF’s agenda is member-centric. The NCAF governance structure is comprised of a Steering Committee and two workgroups, the Benchmarking, Metrics Research Workgroup, and the Emerging Leaders Advancement Workgroup.

Industry Benchmarking
NCHL conducts four annual benchmarking surveys to assess trends, impact, and challenges that exist in the graduate healthcare administrative fellowship area. Responses provide everyone with important knowledge on the current state of fellowships and help our program members navigate the future of administrative fellowships.

Code of Good Practice & Uniform Application Dates
NCAF believes that the healthcare industry benefits from better coordination across the field in the development and operation of fellowship programs. All members agree to abide by the Code of Good Practice, which includes upholding uniform application dates.

NAFCAS: The Centralized Application Services for Administrative Fellowship
Students and prospective fellows interested in applying to a NCAF member fellowship site should utilize the centralized application service (NAFCAS) to simplify their application process. NAFCAS is a one-stop-shop for administrative fellowship sites, applicants/students, and faculty/staff.
